

2012 CNN/STN CONVENTION SCHOLARSHIP

Student Television Network is pleased to announce the 2012 CNN Scholarship that will invite students to attend the STN Convention with travel, meals, hotel and registration costs covered. The purpose of the Scholarship is to make the convention accessible to those who have demonstrated a commitment to broadcasting but who cannot afford to attend.

Middle School and High School students may apply for attendance to an event that they would not otherwise be able to afford. College students will work as interns at the event and may gain class or course credit if they arrange that with their respective school. All scholarship recipients will have direct contact with CNN, providing a portal for continued knowledge of and access to CNN staff.

Applicants should submit a paragraph about their interest and commitment to broadcasting both in and outside school and a description of their financial need. The more compelling submissions will be selected as recipients of this scholarship.
